A REVOLT IN CONSTANTINOPLE

ACCEDES TO ALL U. S. DEMANDS

Advices From Vera Cruz Say Gen. Carranza Has Agreed to Terms on Which American Army Shall Leave City.

Vera Cruz, Nov. 11.—General Venustiano Carranza has acceded to all the demands of the United States government in connection with the evacuation of Vera Cruz by the American forces, according to private advices received here.

Grave concern was felt yesterday regarding the situation in Mexico City. Wild rumors persisted that conditions of open anarchy are imminent in the Mexican capital.

Political refugees arriving here are authority for the report that in some parts of the city there have been open outbreaks and signs of violence by mobs led by Constitutionalists. One report said that the National bank of Mexico City had been threatened.

Copies of Mexico City newspapers show that Carranza still controls the metropolitan press. In these papers and on hand bills distributed through the capital, copies of which were brought here today are violent denunciations of the action of the Aguas Calientes convention in demanding that Carranza step down in favor of General Eulalia Gutierrez.

General Gutierrez has carried out his program and today proclaimed himself provisional president of the republic. The proclamation included the cabinet, which Gutierrez appointed shortly after the generals at

DAILY SPORT LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke)

New York, Nov. 11.—Here she is, the Yale allie for the heading it got at the hands of W. & J. some weeks back. It's a bit late in making its appearance, but then, you know, some things are worth waiting for.

The Yale kang, upon entering the field on that fateful October day, was fully determined to knock the wadding out of W. & J. It was going to play its damnest against those upstart Pennsylvanians. It was going to show them that just because they had held Harvard to a 10 to 9 victory a week before that it couldn't do the same thing, nor anything like the same thing, to dear old Yale.

Orders had been issued to the Eli warriors to "go out and get 'em." The aforementioned warriors were going to do it, too. They were going to dazzle W. & J. by their great trick plays. They were going to pull all the stuff they had on W. & J.

And then it happened. Just a few minutes before the whistle blew a gent was noticed stalking along toward a seat near the side-lines. Somebody close to him penetrated his disguise. Horrors! It was Pere Houghton, the coach of Fair Harvard, the maitre d'hotel of Yale. What was he doing there? Had he been spying—that was it.

Well, quikern a flash word was slipped to the Yale coaches that Pere was among the present. And even quicker, that, so the allied states, word was slipped the Yale warriors to "lay off the trick stuff; don't tip out until Pere Houghton is gazing upon you with photographic eyes."

And there you have it—the main part of the allie.

Up in that New Haven section they will tell you now that if Pere Houghton, darn him, hadn't sneaked into Yale field that day W. & J. never would have won. In fact, W. & J. would have been squashed just like a pumpkin before it is inserted in pumpkin pie, but the appearance of Houghton forced the Yale coaches to shift the Yale playing plans for that game. Instead of using its new tricks, to which it had become accustomed, Yale, at the eleventh hour and fifty-nine minutes, had to play an entirely different style of game than it had expected to play.

One of the prettiest plays seen on an Eastern gridiron this year was attempted by Michigan against Harvard. It failed, but the fact that it failed was a bit of luck for Harvard.

Michigan had the ball. Spawna dropped back about 12 or 15 feet and signalled for the ball. He got it. At the moment the ball was passed the Michigan right end ran into Harvard territory and wheeled around in position to catch a forward pass. Spawna shoved back his arm, with the ball in his hand, as though he were about to throw it.

In the meantime, Matthews, who had been playing to right of Spawna, suddenly jumped forward and took the ball from Spawna's outstretched hand, and as it seemed, that Spawna was staring.

Matthews raced toward Harvard's right end, and had taken about four steps when the Michigan left end, running toward him, took the ball from him. For a fraction of a second, it looked as if Michigan, with its trick play, would make a big gain, but luck favored Harvard. Hardly had the Michigan end received the ball when he tripped over some Harvard men who were directly in front of him—the same Harvard men who originally had rushed forward to tackle Spawna and who didn't know where the ball was until the Michigan end fell over them.

The action was so fast that it bewildered not only the spectators but the crimson warriors as well. It failed to succeed only because of ill luck. It's too bad Yale didn't try it again. It might have worked. It was the only real trick attempted during the game—but it was a pretty one.

Information.

It was a very fashionable concert and the artists very well known ones, but the two young things were too busy with picking out their penitentials to hear the music.

In the midst of a beautiful selection the pianist suddenly lifted his hands from the keys and one of the young things was heard to say clearly:

"I wonder if that hair is his own?" The old man who sat beside her was slightly deaf, but he turned with a benevolent smile.

"No, miss," he replied pleasantly; "that is Schmitt's."—Philadelphia Press.

Old Forts of Antwerp.

As long ago as 1611 an English traveler to Antwerp was impressed by the extensive character of its fortifications. "The galleys, ramparts and platforms are stupendous," writes John Evelyn in his diary. "But there was nothing about this city which more ravished me than those delicious shades and walks of stately trees, which render the fortified works of the town one of the sweetest places in Europe; nor did I ever observe a more quiet, clean, elegantly built and civil place than this magnificent and famous city of Antwerp."

Compensation.

If it is true, as our business philosophers tell us, that "those who never do more than they get paid for never get paid for more than they do," then it is quite clear that if you want to get paid for more than you get paid for, even a philosopher ought to see how impossible that is, but, of course, the true philosopher cannot be expected to hesitate over a mere impossibility.—Life.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Nov. 11.—Representative Channing H. Cox of Ward 10, Boston, was unanimously declared the nominee of the 112 of the 147 Republicans elected. This means a big majority of the caucus for the nomination, and the nomination this year is equivalent to election. The total membership of the house is now 239, owing to the death of Representative-elect Taft of Ashbridge, Republican. Representative Henry B. Rathbun of Newton, the only other name mentioned for the speakership, and he had decided as far back as August not to become a candidate. Representative Cox as chairman of the judiciary committee, has been the titular leader of the house, and is in line for the speakership.

Boston, Nov. 11.—A decision to reduce to a minimum the numerous bills that some of the state officials have made outside of Massachusetts in the expense of the Commonwealth has been reached by Governor Walsh. It is the belief of the governor that such journeys to conferences and other meetings, many in distant parts of the country have been too frequent. All requests to travel will now be sent to the Board of Efficiency and Economy, which will determine whether the expense is warranted. Some officials have accepted every invitation received. One or two have been traveling quite a portion of the year, making 1000 and 2000 mile journeys.

Boston, Nov. 11.—President Rowley of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has sent an order to the 302 agents of the state to notify the farmers as far as far as possible in their districts to restrain their animals on their own premises, and supervise the humane destruction of animals afflicted with the hoof and mouth disease.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Paul E. Walker, Commissioner of Animal Industry, is in Washington for a conference with the Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry on the foot and mouth disease, and to inquire what proportion of the expense of the stamping out of the epidemic will be borne by the national government. The customary procedure is for the national government to reimburse the proportion of expense to be borne by it and to the local state to bear the remainder. In the last epidemic the national government paid 70 per cent and the state thirty per cent. Despite the fact that a new case has been discovered in Belmont, and that clear cases have been reported in Amherst, North Amherst, Mendon, Attleboro, and Brighton, St. Commissioner Walker expresses the belief as more placed with the state than at any time since the outbreak was first reported.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Decorated with large "votes for women" placards, the special train carrying the Massachusetts delegates to the National American Woman Suffrage Convention, which is to be held at Nashville, Tenn., from November 12 to 17 is speeding southward today. Among the speakers at the session will be Miss Jane Adams, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. Glenn Smith Tinsley, Miss Zona Gale and Mrs. Hester Breckinridge.

Boston, Nov. 11.—On Monday, November 16, the open season for shooting deer in Massachusetts will begin at sunrise and will close at sun down on the following Saturday. While deer may be shot under the law, moose are protected by special statute at all times and the penalty for shooting one

THE GERMAN CRUISER EMDEN DESTROYED

Driven Ashore and Sunk by Australian Cruiser.-Has Been Flying Dutchman of the Pacific

London, Nov. 10.—The cruiser Emden, German terror of the Pacific, whose sensational raids upon British shipping and even upon allied warships have been a constant source of commotion to the British admiralty, is no more. Finally forced into battle by the Australian cruiser Sydney, the Emden was driven ashore, on fire from stem to stern. Her grave is on the Cocos Islands, in the Indian ocean, south of Sumatra.

The news of the destruction of the Emden was announced by the admiralty today. Almost at the same time came word of another British victory on the sea, when it was announced that the German protected cruiser Koensigberg had been driven into the Raddi river, German East Africa. The British cruiser Chatham ran down the Koensigberg and the admiralty declared the German vessel had probably been driven aground.

That the Emden fought to the last for her life is evidenced by the fact that the Sydney did not escape without loss of life on board. Three men were killed and 15 injured. When the Emden went ashore she was hopelessly out of commission, but the Sydney made sure of her work by firing a few more shots before drawing off.

Had Picturesque Career

In the destruction of the Emden the sinking of the Russian cruiser Zemtchug and the French destroyer Monarque has been avenged.

The Emden's career has been the most picturesque in the Kaiser's navy. Commanded by Capt. Karl von Müller, she has swept the Pacific capturing or sinking more than a score of merchant vessels of the allied nations, and brought her raids to a climax by boldly entering Penang harbor, where she sank two allied warships.

Coming on the heels of the stirring war speeches of Lord Kitchener and Winston Churchill first lord of the admiralty, the feat of the Sydney in destroying the Emden roused London to a fever of enthusiasm today. The cry now is that the Good Hope and Manmouth must be avenged.

Weight of metal obviously told in the fight between the Emden and the Sydney, as the Australian ship carried the heavier guns. Once on the trail of the German raider, the Sydney was not to be denied. The Emden escaped when the Australian first came in contact with her. The German lost both of her storeships, one being captured and heavier guns. When reported in one fled, refusing combat. The Sydney continued her pursuit, finally overhauled her and forced her to battle.

A fleet of at least 70 warships has been combing the Pacific in search of the Emden. Always she has eluded pursuers just as it seemed she must give battle and go to her doom before her heavier guns. When reported in one section, she would suddenly appear in another and capture or send some merchantman to the bottom.

Iron Cross for Whole Crew

Every officer and member of the crew of the Emden had been awarded the Iron cross by the Kaiser for the brilliant work on the sea. Capt. von Müller and his men realized that sooner or later they must be sent to the bottom. The Emden's commander was recently quoted as declaring to the German admiralty that he knew his vessel would some time be run down and destroyed, but until that time came the Emden would give a thorough account of herself.

One of the wonders in connection with the work of the Emden was the system under which she was kept supplied with coal and provisions. At times, when it was believed certain her raids must cease because of lack of fuel, one of the Emden's storeships would appear and she would be ready for additional work.

On Aug. 6 it was reported that the Emden had been in action with a Russian cruiser and that both had been sunk. A month later the Emden suddenly appeared in the Bay of Bengal and sank five British merchantmen and captured another. The Emden was then accompanied by the Hamburg-American line steamship Markomannia as a collier. Later the Markomannia was sunk by the British.

Shelled City of Madras

In the midst of her career of sinking and capturing ships the Emden appeared off Madras Sept. 22 and shelled the city. When the guns from the fortifications opened fire on the vessel, she extinguished her lights and disappeared. No great damage was done by the bombardment of Madras.

SCHOOL BOARD HOLD A BRIEF MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Instruction was held on Tuesday evening with Mayor Yeaton presiding, and Messrs. Page, Hodgdon, McCarthy, Hartford, Thayer, Gooding, Newell, Knight and Mrs. Howitt present.

The financial report was accepted and the expenditures for the month are as follows:

Expenses of General Control, 120.63
Expenses of Instruction
Salaries of teachers and
Superintendent, $1240.18
Text books, 265.50
Pupil's Supplies, 227.56
Other expenses of instruction, 62.94

$4785.28

Expenses of Operation of Plant

Salaries of Janitors, $390.00
Fuel, 148.11
Light and Power, 21.82
Janitors' Supplies, 68.62

$628.55

Expenses of Maintenance

Building Repairs, $109.31
Equipment Repairs, 18.87

$128.18

The Emden had a speed of 24.5 knots. She was 386 feet long and her armor belt was from two to eight inches in thickness. She was equipped with 10 main guns and two torpedo tubes.

The Sydney has a speed of 26 knots. Her armament consists of eight six-inch guns, four three-pounders and two 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Unofficial advice reaching here declares that Capt. von Müller and a majority of the crew of the Emden are believed to have been saved. It is also reported that the Emden succeeded in cutting the British cable from the Cocos Islands before she was destroyed.

Admiralty Statement

In a statement from the admiralty today, it was declared that as a result of the destruction of the Emden, the Pacific and Indian oceans "are now clear of the enemy's warships, with the exception of the squadron off the coast of China."

Telling of the destruction of the Emden, the admiralty statement declared: "Yesterday morning news was received that the Emden, which had been completely lost since the action with the Zemtchug, had arrived at Kelling, Cocos Islands, and landed an armed party to destroy the wireless station and cut the cable. The Emden was caught and forced to fight by the Australian warship Sydney."

"A sharp action followed, in which the Sydney lost three men killed and 15 wounded. The Emden was driven ashore and burned. Her losses are reported to be very heavy. Every possible assistance was given the survivors by various ships which were dispatched to the scene."

"With the exception of the German squadron now off China, the whole of the Pacific and Indian oceans are now clear of the enemy's warships."

The admiralty sent the following message to the commander of the Sydney:

"Warmest congratulations for the brilliant entry of the Australian navy into the war and the signal service rendered to the allied cause and peace for commerce, by the destruction of the Emden."

Of the Koensigberg's "bottling up" the admiralty statement said:

"On the 13th of October the Koensigberg was discovered by the Chatham hiding in shoal water six miles up the Raddi river opposite Malla Island, German East Africa. Owing to her greater draught, the Chatham was unable to reach the Koensigberg, which is probably aground. Part of the crew of the Koensigberg had landed and entrenched on the banks of the river."

"Both the intrenchments and the Koensigberg were bombarded by the Chatham but owing to the dense palm groves amid which the ship lies it is impossible to estimate the damage that was done. Pending further op-

The report of the Superintendent and Transit officer were read and accepted. The superintendent's report showed an actual attendance of 2018 in the schools. Application from an out of town concern to have permission to photograph the school children with a moving picture machine was laid on the table.

Supt. Pringle called the attention of the board to the need of a new teacher in the high school building.

At the present time there are 417 pupils in the high school proper, and the same number of teachers when there were 354 scholars. Each teacher was teaching the full six periods and then coming back every afternoon for an hour or more and helping the backward scholars and it was getting too much for the present staff. This matter was referred to the high school committee with power.

Mayor Yeaton reported that the new high school building was going along well.

AMERICANS NOT MOLESTED IN TURKEY

The Government anxious to conduct war with all courtesy to non-combatants.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Americans in Turkey have not been molested in any way since the outbreak of the war and are in no danger. Ambassador Morgenthau reported today. The Turkish minister of war informed Mr. Morgenthau that Turkey was anxious to conduct the war with every possible consideration and courtesy to non-combatants, but that if England and Greece attacked any unfortified towns, reprisals would follow in the detention of their subjects.

From references in official messages to apprehension on the part of Turkish officials that Greece would bombard unfortified towns on the Ottoman coast, the belief grew in diplomatic circles today that participation of Greece in the general European war was becoming more probable. Official advice from Bulgaria and Roumania have been meagre and there has been little light shed here on the report that Russian diplomacy was endeavoring to persuade Servia to give Bulgaria a section of Macedonia as a basis for the latter's entry into the war.

Turkey, according to its war minister, has neither soldiers nor ships to send against its enemies to bombard their unfortified towns and would have only one recourse—to hold the subjects of the enemy as hostages. Mr. Morgenthau reported, however, that he was making rapid progress in arriving at an understanding with the Ottoman officials regarding the departure of British and French subjects and that he had already secured the release of several Englishmen who had been imprisoned. He said misunderstandings on the question of detained British and French subjects were daily being removed.

PRESIDENT WILSON FOR ACTION NOT TALK

He Says the Best Comment on the Election will be Work of the Administration.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Commenting on last week's elections, President Wilson said today he was more interested in action than in talk, and declared he hoped his best comment would be the actions of the administration during the next two years. Mr. Wilson added that the Democrats were still in control of the government and that was the main fact to be seen in the results.

SMOKE TALK AT WARWICK CLUB

There was a large gathering of members of the Warwick Club at the club rooms on Tuesday evening when the first of a series of smoke talks was held.

The lecturer was Mr. Charles Everett Benna of Boston and he gave a illustrated lecture on Newfoundland. He is a good talker and illustrated his talk with a series of exceptionally interesting pictures, showing outdoor life in the Province, hunting the caribou, salmon fishing etc. His description of the country was exceptionally good.

The smoke talks are held instead of the usual annual night, and some fine speakers are to be heard.

A Very Proper Step.

All lovers of law and order will heartily endorse the action of President Wilson in the step he has taken to put an end to the lawlessness and rioting in Arkansas, where the night riders, so-called, have taken it upon themselves to regulate the cotton business and other matters according to their own sweet will. He has dispatched troops to the scene of the disturbances and issued a proclamation warning the trouble makers to cease their operations, and warning all others to avoid mixing in the unlawful assemblages, for the reason that if the troops are obliged to act it will be impossible to discriminate between the law breakers and those who are merely looking on. The President promises that the troops will act with all the moderation and forbearance consistent with the accomplishment of their duty, but makes it distinctly understood that the outrages must cease forthwith, otherwise those engaged in them will find themselves in trouble even more serious than they have made for others.

The people of the country are not unfamiliar with the methods of the southern night riders, which very closely resemble those of the Ku Klux Klan, an organization that for some time after the close of the Civil war took upon itself the task of "regulating" certain matters, particularly the right of the negro to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Everybody remembers the cruel outrages perpetrated by that villainous organization, but it came to an end at last and peace and safety were restored.

From that time there were no further troubles of the kind till a few years ago, when conditions in the tobacco regions became unsatisfactory to a set of men who practically revived the Ku Klux Klan under the name of "night riders" and proceeded to "regulate" the growers of tobacco who declined to bow to the dictates of the regulators. Many grievous outrages were committed and much property was destroyed. The present outbreak, based on the cotton situation, appears to be a revival of the old tactics and President Wilson, finding the civil authorities unable to cope with the lawless forces, has very properly ordered troops to the scene and given fair warning of what the consequences will be if the disturbances do not immediately cease. This is business, and the kind of business the people of the country will uphold. If regulation in any part of the United States is to be achieved only by force of arms, the arms must be in the hands of Uncle Sam.

A lot of Yale students had a narrow escape the other day and one was dangerously injured. They were standing on the track of the New Haven railroad stoning a passing freight train when an express train rounded a curve and was almost upon them before they were aware of its approach. Stoning a train is pretty small business for college students, but these were out on a geological excursion and, of course, they had to deal with stones in one way or another. But the frolic came near making a market for a lot of headstones.

The packers assure the country that the quarantining of the Union stock yards in Chicago as a safeguard against the foot and mouth disease will not result in a meat famine, and that in all probability prices will be little affected. This is all right for a starter, but how easy it will be to explain the rise in prices when it comes. And the explanation will be more reasonable than many that have been offered in the past.

The Vermont druggist, who has been dealing out wood alcohol whiskey with fatal effects, says he was suffering from the effects of grip which deprived him of the sense of smell, and that he thought the wood alcohol was cologne spirits. But what kind of whiskey is that made of cologne spirits? Not so fatal as wood alcohol, of course, yet hardly the stuff to be dealt out for "medicinal purposes."

It is reported that the pine forests are threatened with destruction by the European pine shoot moth which was introduced into this country with imported pine seedlings. Our importations of pests have been altogether too great, the gypsy moth being a glaring illustration of carelessness in this direction, and it would seem to be about time to put up the bars so they will stay up.

Arizona voted to retain capital punishment, which was election news of the worst sort for the fifteen convicted murderers who had been reprieved pending the result of the voting. The effort to abolish capital punishment is not making much headway at present, and the reason is easy to understand.

The election was sufficient to take attention partly from the war for a few days at least. And, of course, it is inevitable that there are some who feel as if they had been through war.

The Southern railroad begins the process of retrenchment by cutting the salaries of officials with the wages of the workmen. That's business.

Again has it been proved that in many cases political fusion is followed by confusion in profusion.

In This Way Thousands of War Victims Are Buried In Common Graves In French Cemeteries.

Soldiers who die of their wounds in hospitals in France are buried in common graves in cemeteries purchased for the purpose. The picture shows one of these and interments at Rheims, France. A score of French soldiers who died in the hospital there are being buried in a long trench while sympathizers, mostly women, throw a handful of dirt on each rough wooden box as it is lowered. Notice that another trench is already dug for the next batch of victims.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

WHY THE WAR TAX

The Democratic war revenue measure, which has just passed Congress against the united opposition of Republicans, ought to have been called a war revenue bill, for we are at peace with all the world. It is not to be compared to the war revenue legislation of 1898, when the war was our own war and emergency appropriations were required to maintain our army and navy in the conflict with Spain.

The present so-called war revenue bill is simply an effort to cover up the collapse of the fiscal policy of the Democratic Administration. This European war came along very opportunely for the Democratic party, for emergency revenue legislation would have been necessary even if this terrible conflict had not broken out.

The Simmons-Underwood tariff law reduced the customs duties so excessively that even with an enormous increase in our imports of foreign goods the customs revenue has been wholly inadequate—has fallen far short of the revenue from the same source on a much smaller amount of imported goods under the Republican protective tariff which the Simmons-Underwood law displaced.

A comparative statement of imports and duty collected for the first ten months of the Democratic tariff up to the end of July, when the European war began, shows the real cause why emergency revenue legislation is now necessary:

Ten months under a Republican tariff, October 1912, to July 1913 inclusive, the importations were $1,505,826,932.

Ten months under a Democratic tariff, October 1913, to July 1914 inclusive, the importations were $1,605,160,312.

There was an increase in the amount of importation of over $100,000,000.

For the same period under a Republican tariff the revenue from customs duties was $260,000,000, while under a Democratic tariff the revenue for a large importation was $229,000,000.

Here was a loss of $30,000,000 in revenue for a ten months period before the war in Europe began. This taken in connection with the extravagance of a Democratic congress accounts for the necessity of an extra tax upon the people of over $100,000,000 levied by congress just before adjournment. Nashua Telegraph.

A COMPARISON OF WARS AND DISASTERS

It is popularly supposed that the ravages of war are the most fatal of the mishaps that can happen to the human race, but cold figures show that the deaths resulting from a war are insignificant when compared with the results of earthquakes and tidal waves, and that these, as terrible as they may appear, so to speak, cause but a mere ripple over the highly populated of the world. This is shown by the following figures taken from an article in the special war issue of the Scientific American of November 7th:

Terrible as are the ravages of war, they are far surpassed by some other disasters from which time to time overwhelm the human race. The Franco-Prussian war killed about 180,000 in seven months. The death roll of the Russo-Japanese reached about 200,000. A single earthquake (1737 in India) has been estimated to have caused 800,000 deaths. The fatalities of the Messina earthquake in 1908 can not have been far short of 100,000. A tidal wave in 1896 drowned 27,000 persons in Japan, causing a greater loss of life than the whole war with China in 1894. The earthquake in Japan in 1708 is said to have killed 200,000 people. The Lisbon earthquake in 1755 destroyed 60,000 human lives, while 40,000 were lost in the same year in earthquakes in Persia.

Terrible as such disasters are, they pass over the multiplicity of the human population of our globe as the merest ripples on a mighty sea. The total population of the earth is somewhere about 1,500 millions. Annually there are added to it 14 million souls. Every year at least 80 millions are born, and 60 or 70 millions die. This means a daily birth rate of about 220,000, a death rate of 180,000. The daily increase in population is 40,000. In comparison with this irresistibly swelling tide, what are the greatest battles, wars or earthquakes, but almost microscopic ripples? If we imagine that the power were given to some despot to order a wholesale slaughter, and that gullotins were kept busy beheading one man every minute night and day, this would add only three-quarters of one per cent to the existing death rate!

Titles Come Cheap Nowadays

Editor of The Herald:—I noticed in the recent issue of a local newspaper that one of our citizens who recently prefixed the title of captain to his name, had now come out as a full fledged colonel. Can you inform me how many persons there are in our city who are entitled to the rank of Colonel, and if there is no law to prohibit Tom, Dick and Harry from posing in such a manner and trying to humbug the public with fictitious titles.

Better Guide Boards Needed.

Editor of The Herald:—Better and plainer guide boards are needed in many of the towns in Maine and New Hampshire. In many places the boards at the forks of the road have outlived their usefulness and on many the lettering is so obliterated and worn as to require the closest scrutiny by persons with the best of eyesight. Such guide boards are hardly better than none at all, and are a great inconvenience to persons traveling by automobile who are unacquainted with the country. Both the states of Maine and New Hampshire are anxious to have the summer guests within their borders and great improvements have been made in the highways, especially the so-called state roads, during the past decade. It, however, would seem as though some attention should be given to the neglected and worn-out guide boards as well. If we want to retain the good will of our summer guests as well as our own people who like to enjoy a trip through the suburbs.

GIRLS JUMP A FREIGHT

Skip From Portland With Tramp Escorts.

Cold weather for female hobos to be on the road and it is seldom that we hear of them jumping freight. However, two Portland Misses, who escaped from a Portland institution showed that they don't mind traveling in a box car, especially when they are chaperoned by tramps of the opposite sex. The girls are 14 and 15 years old. Their liberty lasted about four days, for the two men and one of the girls, and was brought to an abrupt close when the trio was arrested in Limerick by Deputy Sheriff Herbert C. Patch of Newfield, and by whom they were returned to Portland. The other girl after a day or two of the free and untrammelled air of the country side returned to the institution of her own accord. It was through information furnished by her that the three remaining members of the party were traced and recaptured.

It was Monday night, when Mrs. Burnham, matron of the institution, called Deputy Sheriff Thomas Cullinan of Biddeford, explaining that two of the girls under her charge had run away with two tramps and that she had reason to believe were headed for York county. At this, Mr. Cullinan got busy and called Deputy Sheriff Herbert Smith of Dayton, who in turn called Deputy Patch.

Tuesday morning all three were on the job, with the result that one of the girls and her two male companions were arrested by Patch in Limerick. From the story told by the girl the quartette left Portland on a freight train some days ago, riding to Cornish. Here the party was taken in and housed by Simon Folsom, remaining there three days, with the exception of one of the girls, who tiring of the life, returned of her own free will to Portland, Monday, the remaining three, thinking to visit the father of one of the men, Minor Wilson, who it was supposed lived in Limerick, the party started for that town but on arriving learned that the Wilsons had moved to Sanford. The trio was just on its way to Sanford when arrested by Deputy Patch. The second male member of the party gave his name as Leon Field and his age as 23 years.

Pleasing Dramatic and Musical Entertainment at Court Street Church.

A very pleasing dramatic and musical entertainment was given in the auditorium of the Court street Christian church, on Tuesday evening by Boston talent. There was a large and appreciative audience who greeted the artists and they returned the compliment by giving their best to their audience.

At this time she scored a decided hit and as a dramatic reader and impersonator has a wonderful future before her. The press everywhere have remarked upon her

CURRENT OPINION

RASH TO FIX BLAME NOW FOR GREAT WAR

Private judgment upon the causes of the war and upon the merits of the claims and charges on either side is certainly not to be denied us, although it is a rash man that will attach any great importance to his private judgment on the issues involved in such a conflict before the evidence has been sifted and tested.

Toward English, French and Germans, toward Russians as toward Serbians and Montenegrins and whatever other peoples of Europe or of America may be drawn into the vortex of war we shall do well to cherish at this time sentiments of neighborliness and good will, so that, in so far as in us lies, peace may come quickly and all nations may have cause to remember that in their time of peril we gave them no cause for offense, had no ear for slander against them, listened to their just grievances with sympathy and with open and understanding minds to their aims, purposes and ideals.—By Dr. Edward T. Devine of New York University.

CHURCH NOTES

skill in this line of art and her character sketches, impersonations and monologues certainly delighted her audience last evening.

Whether in a pathetic or humorous recitation or a dialect character sketch, she was equally good. Her interpretations of Irish and Scotch wit, in her dialect character sketches, pleased her audience immensely.

Miss Haviland has a very bright and charming personality and her selections last evening seemed to give the most of herself in a widely ranged repertoire.

Mr. Frederic Perry, who assisted her, rendered some fine baritone solos. Miss Haviland acted as his accompanist on the piano.

Mr. Perry's rich baritone voice showed marked ability as a classical singer.

This entertainment adds another success to the score already maintained by the Venevolent Society of the Court street church.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED

Portsmouth Council, K. of C., Visited by Two State Deputies and Staff.

The regular meeting of Portsmouth Council, No. 140, Knights of Columbus, was held Tuesday evening, at their home on Ellington street. At that time the following new officers were installed by District Deputy J. J. Kane and staff of Manchester:

The local Knights were also visited by State Deputy E. J. Riley and staff of Dover.

Both the State and District deputies gave pleasing addresses. Other speakers who added to the occasion, were Father Mulvanity, Past State Deputy John C. Dolan, State Secretary J. P. Grimes and Past Grand Knights, F. A. Pagan and E. J. Ryan.

There was an unusually large attendance and the meeting very interesting. At the conclusion lunch was served by J. T. Sheehan and his committee.

Patriotic exercises were witnessed by a large attendance of members of the two organizations and addresses were made by Post Department Commanders John Doyle and Harry W. Responses in behalf of Storer Post were made by Messrs Doolittle, Bell, Uch and Morgan, who thanked the younger veterans for the honor to the Post and told several humorous stories of war times. Refreshments were served during the evening and it was late when the last faint of the camp fire had burned away.

No. 24 Woodbury Avenue
Portsmouth, N. H.GOVERNOR SPRY ON NATIONAL RESOURCES

Says the Country as a Whole Does Not Profit by Those of the Eastern States.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—Governor William Spry of Utah, told the members of the National Governors' Conference here today that conservation of national resources as now practiced in the United States constitutes a grave injustice to the Eastern States against the Far Western, or Public Land States, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

He pointed out that the older States had developed their resources and passed these into private hands without the present restrictions. The natural resources of the Eastern States, he said, were the property of the citizens of these States and the country as a whole does not profit by them; the taxes defraying the expenses of a State Government in the East are distributed over the whole State.

In the Far West, however, the withdrawal of lands from private ownership is serious. Impairing the tax resources of the State and throwing a grave burden of taxation on the privately owned lands. The Middle West and Eastern States now demand that they shall profit by the undeveloped resources of the Far Western States, he declared, though they never yielded a like return from their own natural resource to the people as a whole.

He said the present laws are being grossly misinterpreted by "bureau underlings whose rulings if uniformly wrong bear the striking characteristics of being uniformly against the States and in favor of the National Government."

"Take, for instance, the State I represent," said Governor Spry. "Utah, with an area of 64,000,000 acres has put from ten to twelve millions of acres in vested ownership or process of transfer, and much of that consists of grazing lands that yield but slight income through taxation. If our sources for revenue for local self-government were adequate in the increasing demands, or if our revenue were in excess of our needs and we were squandering the income, I grant this national curtailment of State development through land withdrawal would not be so serious, but it is a fact that additional land ownership, with improvements, more extensive mining operations, greater power development and all those activities that make for a prosperous community are imperative necessities in Utah to keep abreast the expense of maintaining schools, state government, state institutions and carrying on internal improvements. During the biennial period 1913-1914, Utah will expend for purely educational purposes approximately eighty-eight per cent of its entire state revenues for taxation, and when I tell you that in arriving at that percentage public utilities, not proceeds of mines and all assessments made by the state board of equalization are included with the taxes levied on real estate, personal property, improvements and all other taxable possessions, you will realize also that we are facing a very serious problem and our need for a continuation of those policies which have been the most potent factors in the development of our State is a great one. It is not so much a question as to whether national or state governments shall control the lands and resources as it is an absolute necessity that the lands and resources be placed in the hands of industrious settlers who will develop them, thereby adding to the material welfare of the states in which they lie and the greatness of the nation of which the states are a part.

"It is but a short step from the minor leasing system to the leasing of agricultural lands."

"Landlordism has ever been autocratic, overbearing, while tenantry has developed people who lack in the two most necessary qualities of American citizenship—loyalty and patriotism! In Utah we have been building our State by aiding the people to own their homes, to own their places of business, and to own the business in which they are engaged, and it is the only policy that will make for that kind of citizenship which will perpetuate the American form of Government. Tenantry is repugnant to the ideals of American citizenship."

"The West solicits no sympathy, asks no favors, pleads for no advantages, but demands consistency and fair play and equal opportunity with her sister states in handling her resources."

BLAME GERMAN SPIES FOR FIRE

800 Horses Burn to Death in Fire on Steamer Rembrandt.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10.—Virtually all of the 800 horses on board the British steamship Rembrandt were burned to death when the ship took fire off the Virginia Capes yesterday, according to information reaching here tonight. The Rembrandt was bound from Baltimore to St. Zazaire, France, and the animals are understood to have been intended for the armies of the Allies.

It was reported tonight that Captain Smith of the Rembrandt, had notified officials of the Lamport and Trott, one of the ship, that he had reason to believe the vessel was fired by German spies who were members of the crew. The captain is said to have claimed that threats against the ship were made before she steamed from Baltimore on Saturday.

Tonight the Rembrandt was 10 miles off Cape Henry, disposing the remains of the horses. She will proceed to Newport News for repairs.

A Good Time to Change

If you have been using a mixture of cream of tartar and soda for quick baking you will find it profitable, because of the increasingly high price of cream of tartar, to use Royal Baking Powder instead.

It will pay you to do this because the price of Royal, which is made from highly refined cream of tartar, has not been changed, and because you will find it in every way more satisfactory than the use of home-made mixtures to which you have been accustomed. Royal Baking Powder is famous for its absolute purity and its reliability as a quick raising agent.

BIDS OPENED FOR SIX DESTROYERS— OTHER NAVAL NEWS

Washington, Nov. 10.—The two-battleship programme will be continued during the coming session of Congress. President Wilson said today that no change was contemplated in the plans outlined last year, and added there would be no increase in the naval estimates.

Bids on Big Destroyers

Bids for the construction of six giant destroyers—the largest ever designed for the American navy—were submitted for opening today at the Navy Department. Military character does not embodied in destroyers of the previous class have been planned for the new vessels, and by increasing their displacement twenty tons they will be enabled to carry four additional torpedo tubes and two anti-bulldozers. When the new vessels are completed there will be sixty-eight destroyers in the navy. The destroyers were authorized by the last Congress and their limit of cost, exclusive of armament, is $925,000 each. They will have a displacement of 1110 tons and speed of 29 1-2 knots.

The added displacement will be made possible by increasing the draught 1 1-2 inches, which will increase 3 1-2 inches. They will have a beam of 26 feet 10 inches. The new destroyers will be equipped with four 4-inch rapid fire guns, four 6.8 21-inch triple torpedoes and two one-pounder automatic anti-aircraft guns.

Gardner Thinks Wilson's Help

Representative A. P. Gardner makes public here today a letter addressed to him by Chairman Henry of the Rules Committee, in which he requests a hearing on his resolution for an investigation of our national defense. Accompanying the letter Mr. Gardner has issued a statement in which he says that many Democrats have written to him, "expressing great concern over President Wilson's attitude and expressing their fear lest his great power may be used to draw the veil of silence over the situation."

The entire Gardner statement is as follows:

"I have received hundreds of letters from all over the United States, four-thousands of them favoring my resolution. The writers who oppose my resolution and the newspapers which take the same position resolve themselves into two classes, to wit, those who say that we have an adequate army and navy for our defense, and those who say that we have not an adequate army and navy for our defense, and what is more, that we do not need them.

"I have received a good many letters from persons who claim to be Democrats, expressing great concern over President Wilson's attitude and expressing their fear lest his great power may be used to draw the veil of silence over the situation. Personally, I have enough confidence in the President's good judgment to feel no such apprehension.

"During the campaign just closed I spoke continually on the need of an investigation into the adequacy of our army and navy and I freely expressed my opinion that we were utterly and entirely unprepared to defend ourselves if attacked by a real power. I do not pretend to any especial political astuteness, but it required no subtlety to discern the very solemn feeling which prevailed my audiences. There were any way of proving it should cheerfully wager my political future that the sentiment of the people overwhelmingly favors the creation of an army and navy absolutely and unquestionably adequate for our defense against any nation upon earth."

Wants to Cross-Question

In his letter to Chairman Henry, Mr. Gardner, after asking for a hearing, goes on to say: "Many citizens will be present to testify, and many army and navy officers have expressed their readiness to do likewise, unless the Administration should feel that the public interest requires that officers be forbidden to comment on the situation at this time."

"If your committee is willing to grant my request, I urge that I may be permitted to participate in the examination of the witnesses."

Training Reserve of 150,000

A reserve army that will consist of more than 150,000 in five years is being trained by the War Department in cooperation with educational institutions and organizations. The military instruction camps, the National Rifle Association of America, the Army League and other organizations are strong in the movement. Students between the ages of eighteen and thirty in universities, colleges and graduating classes of high schools were trained at the camps during the last summer only those physically qualified for military service being enrolled. Army officers are detailed to these camps, and where possible regulars are present. The War Department says:

"The benefit of these camps to the nation is that they foster a patriotic spirit, without which a nation soon loses its vitality and falls into decay; they spread among the citizens of the country a more thorough knowledge of military history, military policy, and military needs, all necessary to the complete education of a well equipped citizen. As a military asset these camps are of great value since they afford the means of maintaining and increasing the military reserve of the United States by training a class of educated men from which, in time of national emergency, would be drawn a large proportion of the volunteer commissioned officers, upon whose judgment and training at such a time the safety and even the lives of many of their fellow countrymen will largely depend."

GRIM REALITIES OF THE BATTLE FIELD

London, Nov. 10.—People of this generation have never before seen real war, and they have a hard time realizing what it means. True they have read histories of the wars of years ago, but it is hard for the average reader to grasp the difference between history and fiction, as far as realizing the actual conditions is concerned.

Consequently, the people now living are obtaining their first realization of the grim realities of the war, from tales told by the wounded men arriving in England, and the letters sent back by the men at the front.

Through the letters of soldiers at the front to their friends, and from the lips of those who have returned home wounded, many glimpses of the battle-field are being obtained. Unhappily there are too many independent but corroborative statements of shameful brutalities by the enemies, not only against men in arms, but against the wounded and women and children.

Private Lewis Downs, of the Royal Munster Fusiliers, who was one of the British soldiers present at the battle of Mons in the nine days' fight, states that the endurance and courage of every member of the British forces engaged were astounding to the enemy. Every officer and man entered into the fight with the greatest enthusiasm, the various regiments singing their particular popular songs.

"Danger," said Private Downs, "is not thought of. It was unknown at Mons. The loud reports and sudden flashes like an approaching storm simply spurred every man on to greater effort, and when shot we felt no pain, only a numbness. Whenever we got into close quarters the Germans howled and ran like dogs before our bayonets. They are driven into battle like sheep by brutal officers, and their disgraceful conduct is most revolting."

Millions of men and women have found that headache or neuralgia misery is needless. Get what you ask for.

He assured an interviewer from personal experience that women and children were placed before the German battalions, and that he knew of several instances where the young women were outraged by drunken German officers and then stripped and paraded in the streets. If they offered much resistance their breasts and ears were cut off by the sword, and when men (unarmed) remonstrated at such heinous crimes, they were shot like rats.

"The general impression in the fighting area," he said, "is that the Austrian and German soldiers are aware of ultimate defeat and intend to do their worst till then. Everywhere the British soldiers go they are heartily received. Every man is in high spirits, and the earnest wish of the wounded is for quick recovery to return at the earliest moment."

Thrilling details of the battle of Cambrai were given a Dover correspondent by a wounded soldier of the Lancashire Fusiliers. He said: "We arrived in France on August 22, and after about five hours' rest in Boulogne we were entrained, and after traveling about 140 miles, got out at a country siding about 2 p. m. on August 23. We at once prepared for action, and about 5 o'clock received orders to move up country towards the north. Under cover of darkness we marched some 17 miles, and then stopped for refreshment, a drink of tea. Following a couple of hours' rest we started off again, and after a hard march arrived on the battlefield early on August 25."

"We immediately got in touch with the enemy. Entrenched in a strong position we kept the Germans off while the First Army Corps rolled in good order. An evening drew on we moved off again, and after marching all night, commenced at dawn the furious battle of Cambrai, in which the Dover brigade made such a name for themselves. Our troops were led into a trap, and before we had a chance to form in any order the enemy were down on us. They for centuries have been down on us. They charged furiously, but our men opened a hot fire and their ranks were badly thinned. The Germans made a last effort, but were repulsed by showers of bullets.

"We suffered very severely, losing many men before the engagement finished. A party of us, including myself, made a 'bluff' bayonet charge towards the British to draw the German attack away from our main body. We rushed up and fought fiercely with the front row of the Germans, and then suddenly turned into a thick wood on the right and outthanked them. I got a nasty fall in the leg from a German bayonet, and that's why I'm lame now."

"It was difficult for us to get our wounded away for the Germans were killing them, and they were actually cutting off the hands of our stretcher-bearers and were killing scores of the English. With many other wounded men I was taken to a church which was being used as a hospital. While the men were having their wounds dressed, German artillery started to shell the place and suddenly blew the place up. Many of our men inside were killed, but I was one of those who were lucky enough to escape. I managed to make my way to a field dressing base, and finally was sent home after the most terrible day's experience I've ever had."

In a vivid account of the sea fight off Heligoland, a Shepherd's Irish man says: "We were going along all right, when we suddenly spotted two German torpedo boats, so we gave chase and opened fire on them, but they got away. Then we spotted a light cruiser, the Matka, and giving chase, overtook her and opened fire. She went to the bottom. It was pitiful to see the men on board jumping over and swimming around waiting to be saved."

"We were just going to board a boat and pick up the survivors, when another German battle cruiser was seen, so we had to go after her and leave our torpedo boats to retrieve the men in the water. The second German ship went the same way, with her guns hanging overhead, her funnels shot away, and everything in flames."

Another Shepherd's Irish man, who was a wireless operator on board the ill-fated Speedy, describes the scene after the striking of the mine.

"The ship listed right over to starboard and gradually went down. Everything was done properly, and we threw overboard everything that would float."

OUCH! LAME BACK. RUB LUMBAGO OR BACKACHE AWAY

Rub pain right out with small trial bottle of old
"St. Jacob's Oil."

Kidneys cause Backache? No! They have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain. Lumbago, sciatica or a strain, and the quickest relief is afforded by penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil." Rub it right on your painful back, and instantly the soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't stay crippled! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" from your druggist and rub it up. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache or lumbago pain.

Rub old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" whenever you have sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprains, as it is absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Then we received orders to stand ready to abandon the ship and those who could not swim were given lifebelts. One after another leapt overboard, and the captain, who was splendid, jumped last of all."

Both Views

"Confidentially," said the undertaker's wife, "Mr. Smith hasn't paid the bill for his wife's funeral yet."

"Isn't that scandalous?" exclaimed Mrs. Gable. "I should think he'd be ashamed to let people see how little he thought of his wife."

"Yes, and his brother, John, when his wife was buried, paid the very next day."

"Right! Looked as if he was glad to get rid of her, didn't he?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

GERMANS RETREATING BEFORE ALLIES ATTACK

Petrograd, Nov. 10.—A Russian army of 600,000 men, including infantry and cavalry and supported by field artillery, continues to advance against the Turks in the vicinity of Erzerum, an official statement issued by the war office today declared.

"The Turks have placed large bodies of troops, including armed peasant, on the Persian frontier," the statement declares. "At all points the success of our forces continues. Thousands of prisoners have been taken and the Kurd cavalry put to flight. The strong Turkish position 25 miles east of Erzerum is now held by the Russians."

Petrograd, Nov. 10.—All Russian territory is now cleared of Germans, and all fighting now is inside the German border. This is the claim of the Russian war office today as additional reports arrive telling of the mighty sweep of the forces of the Czar as they press onward into East Prussia, Posen and Galicia.

Heavy snows, having already fallen in the north, the Russian transport divisions are now equipped with sledges. The cavalry is reported to have pierced the left German flank at Konin.

The line of intrenchments erected by the Germans from Czenstobowa to Warsaw and Kalisz are declared to have been abandoned. Russian cavalry is reported within 15 miles of Czenstobowa. The advance guard, rushing through Posen province, is declared to be approaching Thorn, the southernmost fortress of the Vistula defenses.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—Another Russian remount on the hills of the eastern frontier of East Prussia is reported to Berlin from Gumbinnen under date of Nov. 8. Simultaneously with their operations against the main German army under Gen. von Hindenburg on the line of the river Warthe, the Russians attempted to break into East Prussia by the old route south of Wehlau, but were met at the frontier by Gen. von Morgen's army and, after very heavy fighting, driven back across the frontier.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Fighting from dawn to dusk, hampered by thick fog banks and at times crawling on hands and knees through high grass, the advance of the allies along the Belgian seacoast continues, according to reports received here today. The advance Monday was somewhat slower as the Germans, after two days of retreat and rest, again resumed the offensive. The allies, however, presented a stonewall defense and the Germans again were forced to retreat.

The region around Ypres is the scene of the greatest activity, as the Germans, apparently, wish to take possession of the territory between La Bassée and Nieuport, which is considered of great strategic importance.

Although the advance yesterday was only slight, this should not be depreciated, in the opinion of the leading military critics, but rather acclaimed as its full value, and it appears that now, after many retreats, counter marches and interminable delay, the allies' advance has begun in reality.

Jeffre's Policy Vindicated

The critics say it is impossible to pay too high a tribute to Gen. Jeffre's policy, which unfortunately has been hitherto criticized by those who were impatient and desirous of quicker results.

Gen. Berthoud, writing in the Petit Journal, considers the allies' advance

On the right bank of the Alsne, together with the occupation of Soupp, Chayonne and Vally of prime importance. This means that the high plateau, including the Chomix des Dunes, probably has been occupied and will give the allies the hotly contested position on the plateau of Vregay, north-east of Solsons, which is believed to be the key to the Alsne situation.

This plateau once taken can easily be held as it is criss-crossed with ravines through which flow tributaries of the Alsne. The heights from this point to Craonne are believed to be held by the allies.

Serious in Alsace

In Alsace the Germans have suffered a marked defeat, as their attacks to gain the vantage point on St. Marie heights have been fruitless. The situation here, it is stated, becomes more serious every day, as the only available roads running east and west are the possession of the allies, and unless the Germans succeed in breaking through and joining the main army their only alternative will be a retreat.

GOVERNORS URGE UNIFORM LAWS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—Problems connected with the regulation of corporations in that state, while complying with the laws of one state, they are not discouraged by different laws from doing business in another state, were brought up for solution before the seventh annual governors' conference, which opened a five-day session here today. The executives of more than half the states in the country, many former governors and governors-elect, were present when Governor McLevorn of Wisconsin called the meeting to order. Three important discussions are to be opened. Governor Charles H. Miller of Delaware will discuss uniformity of conditions imposed by the states upon outside corporations. Governor Edward P. Duane of Illinois will discuss uniformity of laws in safety and sanitation and Governor William Spry of Utah will consider state control of natural resources.

In an address on "The State University and the State," President Van Dine of Wisconsin State University defended that institution against the allegation that that institution had entered the domain of politics. "A state university," he said, "should be free to teach and investigate all subjects in which people are profoundly interested. This is not engaging in politics; it is a fundamental necessity. The only regular business on today's programme was a report by Governor Samuel O'Neal of Alabama on rural credits. Among the governors who are attending are Simeon E. Baldwin, Connecticut; William T. Haines, Maine; David L. Walsh, Massachusetts; and Samuel B. Felker, New Hampshire.

A good case of playing with fire. Some unknown picture men are reported to have offered the principal figure in a current murder trial $100,000 for her personal appearance in a picture detailing a history of the case. A certain "Illium" company has prematurely pictured its own version of the case, though the jury has yet to hear the actual evidence. This is the sort of picture that the higher minded public protect against and it does a whole lot of damage against the Motion Picture business. The companies that had a craze of making "White Slave" pictures soon learned their lesson, but apparently it has not hit all quarters. If such a picture is made, a large part of the moving picture manufacturers will endeavor to have the film condemned as "injurious to the moving picture business in its entirety." This is also the sort of picture that breeds and nourishes the censor boards.

Some of the moving picture exhibitors pay over a $1000 a week in the larger cities for the great feature pictures.

At the theatre where such pictures are shown, the average admission is 25c but the show is certainly worth the price. Think of paying a quarter to see a film that costs hundreds of thousands of dollars to produce and there are a great many that cost as much as the above figure.

KARLSRUHE'S BASE OFF BRAZIL

German Commerce Destroyer Said to Be Using Small Island, Rocks Reef, as a Supply Station.

Edinburgh, Nov. 10.—An officer on the freight steamer Pruth, which was sunk by the German cruiser Karlsruhe off the coast of Brazil, has arrived here. He says the Karlsruhe is using an island called Rocas Reef as a coal and supply base and that there the Germans have a large quantity of coal and stores.

Officers of the Karlsruhe told me, said this officer, "that they expected to be captured by the British before long but that meanwhile it was their painful duty to do as much damage as possible to the enemy's commerce. They were very polite and gave us twelve hours to leave our ship. Then they took off the provisions and the ship's papers and blew up the Pruth with dynamite. We were transferred to the Creteil, which was one of five cargo boats accompanying the Karlsruhe, which she was using as scouts."

BRITISH SHIPS ENTER STRAITS

Cruiser Glasgow and Transport Ottranto, Remainder of Fleet Defeated by Germans Off Chile, Reported Bound for Falkland Islands.

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 10.—The British cruiser Glasgow, which was engaged with the German squadron in battle off the Chilean coast Sunday Nov. 1, and the British transport Ottranto have passed Delgada Point light in the Straits of Magellan, bound for the Falkland Islands, a British concession, to the east of the southern point of South America.

After the cruiser Good Hope had been sunk by the Germans and the Ottranto was so badly damaged that she appeared unable to steam away, according to the British Admiralty report of the sea fight off Chile, the Glasgow accompanied her as she drifted away in the darkness. The Admiralty said the Glasgow was not extensively damaged and had a very few casualties, although during the battle she had fought the Leipzig and the Dresden, while the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau were taking care of the two larger vessels. The Ottranto, the Admiralty said, was not engaged in the fight.

Just fill up a barrel or box and send them to the hospital where they will be gratefully acknowledged by the Board of Directors of that institution.

COLD WEATHER WILL HOLD BACK DISEASE

Washington, Nov. 10.—With thirteen states under Federal quarantine, and cattle shipments barred from Canada, officials of the Department of Agriculture working with local authorities pressed their fight today in halt the spread of the foot-and-mouth disease among livestock. Colder weather in the infected states, it was believed, would tend to check the epidemic. Reports from field agents in Indiana and Michigan led to expressions of hope at the department that the epidemic in those states had been brought under control.

CANADA BARS SHIPMENTS

Not Only of Livestock but of Fodder, Wool and Hides.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 10.—Canada has forbidden the importation of livestock, poultry, fodder, wool and hides from any point in the United States because of the foot-and-mouth disease prevailing in sections of the latter country. Canadian tanners and woolen manufacturers have obtained most of their raw material from the United States and are greatly embarrassed by the embargo.

CHICAGO WORK PROGRESSING

Federal Official May Permit Yards to Reopen Thursday.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Although herds of dairy cattle in five Illinois counties were found yesterday to be infected with foot-and-mouth disease and ordered destroyed, Dr. O. E. Tyson, state veterinarian, announced today that he believed the epidemic in this state to be now under control. Rapid progress is being made in disinfecting the Chicago Union Stock Yards, and Dr. B. S. Bennett, Federal veterinarian, said he would permit their reopening on Thursday if satisfied with the progress of fumigation.

Three Cases in Kentucky

Washington, Nov. 10.—Three cases of foot-and-mouth disease in Bullitt County, Ky., were reported today to the Department of Agriculture, and officials awaited further advices from field agents before taking steps to quarantine the state.

PAYS THEIR FARE TO GOTHAM

Mayor, Visited by Twenty-Seven Members of Stranded Opera Company, Gives Them $10 Each to Get Out of Town.

Twenty-seven members of the Boston Theatre Opera Company were objects of dejection as they filed into City Hall this noon to seek aid from the mayor for their return to New York. They told him that he alone in Boston could relieve their distress. They were absolutely "broke" and without a friend to lend or give them the necessary money to pay their fare.

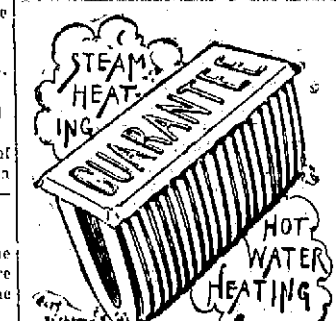

"Come back at two o'clock and I will give each of you ten dollars to take you to New York," the mayor told them.

The mayor then used his telephone and secured contributions from philanthropic business men—$100 from one man, $40 apiece from two others, and the remainder in small contributions.

At two o'clock the twenty-seven members of the company made their return call, and each was handed $10 the mayor saying that the money would be sufficient to purchase a parlor chair and provide a place to sleep when they reach New York. There were but two women in the party.

Comprehensive Ignorance

Two Irishmen were philosophizing said Pat to Mike:
"Did yer liver shlop to think that wan half of the world don't know how the other half gets along?"
"You're right," says Mike, "and neither does the other half."—New York Post.
